ABOUT THE ISLAMIC DEVELOPMENT BANK (IDB)

The Islamic Development Bank (IDB) is a multilateral development financial institution established in 1395H(1975G) to foster economic development and social progress in its member countries and Muslim communities in non-member countries in accordance with the principles of Shari'ah (Islamic Law). The present membership of the IDB stands at 57 countries spreading into different continents and regions.

The mission of the IDB is to promote comprehensive human development, with a focus on the priority areas of alleviating poverty, improving health, promoting education, improving governance and prospering the people.

The IDB provides various forms of development assistance for poverty alleviation through human development, fostering economic cooperation by promoting trade and investment among member countries, and enhancing the role of Islamic finance in the social and economic development of its member countries.

ABOUT THE PRIZE

The Islamic Development Bank established the IDB Prize for Women's Contribution to Development in 1427H(2006G) in alignment with the recommendations of the IDB Women's Advisory Panel. The Panel is composed of 12 prominent women recognized as leaders in their fields who advise the Bank on how to enhance women's participation in the socio-economic development process. The Prize is awarded annually in order to draw international attention to the vital role women play in developing their communities and the world.

OBJECTIVES

The Prize aims to RECOGNIZE, ENCOURAGE, INSPIRE and REWARD women's participation in the socio-economic development process. It aims to:

Recognize

- the important role of women in IDB member countries and Muslim communities globally
- contributions made by individuals or organizations to improve the socio-economic status of women in IDB member countries and Muslim communities in non-member countries

Encourage

- efforts to improve women's access to opportunities and resources to help them become active participants in developing their economy and society
- individuals and organizations that offer grants and resources to work towards promoting women's leadership, engagement and contribution to the socio-economic development process

Inspire

- women by promoting exemplary role models
- individuals and organizations to initiate and actively engage in projects aimed at developing women and building their capacities

Reward

- individuals and organizations that are committed to improving the well being and status of women locally, nationally, and globally
- actions that reinforce and strengthen the role of women as essential contributors to society as well as effective agents of change and development

AWARD

The Prize consists of two cash awards:

- a) U.S. $ 50,000 for a woman or a group of women
- b) U.S. $ 100,000 for an organization

The Prize is awarded during the Annual Meeting of the IDB Board of Governors.

CRITERIA

The general criteria applied in selecting and assessing nominations for the Prize for both individuals and organizations include the following:

Impact

Individuals and organizations nominated should exhibit projects that have contributed to the improvement of the socio-economic status and well being of society.

Creativity

Individuals and organizations nominated should have projects/activities that are outstanding, innovative and unique.

Outreach

Individuals and organizations nominated should have mechanisms for expanding their projects/activities to surrounding areas to ensure their services are offered to as many beneficiaries as possible.

Sustainability

Individuals and organizations nominated should have projects/activities that are sustainable.

PRIZE PROCESS

The Prize is administered by the IDB through the Capacity Development Department in consultation with the IDB

Women's Advisory Panel and in collaboration with its academic advisor, Effat University. The processing of the Prize involves the following steps:

- a. The IDB in consultation with the IDB Women's Advisory Panel determine the yearly theme for the Prize.
- b. The IDB refines the theme and topics, establishes the specific criteria of selection and develops the nomination forms.
- c. The IDB publicizes the Prize and receives nominations.
- d. An independent screening committee is established by the academic advisor to short list nominations.
- e. An independent Selection Committee is established by the IDB to select winners of the Prize from the short listed candidates.
- f. The winners are announced during the Annual Meeting of the IDB Board of Governors.

SELECTION COMMITTEE

The Selection Committee is composed of five distinguished women. Members are annually chosen and selected based on their extensive experience in the field of the related theme and topics. The committee is comprised of members from the IDB Women's Advisory Panel and subject specialists.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE PREVENTION AND CONTROL OF CANCER

Cancer is among the leading causes of morbidity and mortality worldwide. Annually there are a reported 14 million new cancer cases and 8.2 million cancer related deaths. Unfortunately, these numbers are expected to rise by about 70% over the next two decades. The overwhelming majority of new cancer cases and cancer deaths are in Africa, Asia, Central and South-America regions in which most IDB member countries are located. Many of these countries require various support and assistance to ensure the availability of comprehensive and affordable cancer services required to meet the increasing demand.

Cancer is a major global health problem that is increasingly impacting the world. It causes emotional stress and financial strain, which have a negative impact on society in general, disrupting the life of millions. Thus, reducing the incidence and mortality associated with cancer must remain one of society's major health goals. In recognizing the vital and much needed role of women in cancer prevention and control, the IDB is devoting the 12th Edition of IDB Prize for Women's Contribution to Development to highlight and reward their role and contributions in the fight against cancer.

INDIVIDUALS:

RECOGNIZING WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE PREVENTION AND CONTROL OF CANCER

The Prize will award outstanding achievements made by women who advocate for the implementation of effective cancer prevention strategies and provide support to comprehensive cancer control measures by undertaking various activities such as advocacy, raising awareness, cancer screening, treatment and palliative care.
